Amy M. Clark was born in Dallas, Texas and attended DeSoto High School. She moved to South Texas for higher education, graduating from Trinity University in San Antonio, with a BA in Anthropology. She also spent a semester in Florence, Italy, studying at the Lorenzo de Medici School of Art. Afterwards, Clark moved to the Washington, D.C., area to begin her career with the National Rifle Association. Upon moving back to Texas she continued working with The NRA Foundation on a consultant basis for several years. On the political front, Clark first became a precinct chair shortly after her move to Live Oak County. Within two years she was serving as County Chairman of the party.

Her most recent project is the development of the “Empower the People (Squeaky Wheel)” training, alongside fellow SREC Rebecca Williamson and TFRW President Toni Anne Dashiell.

Diversity in the GOP

What needs to be done and how to do it. Come and hear Apostle Claver’s unique perspective and plan on how to expand the GOP through outreach and straight talk.

He’s the host of The Christian Politician Radio Show, heard on KCHN 1050 AM, in Houston. He’s considered one of the most dynamic speakers on liberty and offers a unique vision of political ideology. Apostle Claver Kamau-Imani is the founder and senior pastor of the Corinthian Christian Empowerment Center (CCEC) in Houston. Apostle Claver is a graduate of Lamar University with a B.S. in mass communications. Apostle Claver grew up in Beaumont, Texas within a home of politics and civil rights. Both of his parents were active leaders in Democratic politics, the civil rights movement, and the Missionary Baptist Church. Currently, Apostle Claver is a member of the Republican Party, and sits on the board of directors for the Greater Houston Pachyderm Club. Claver has appeared on Sean Hannity, John Gibson and the Mancow Show to name a few.

Healthcare Reform and What it means to you!

As Washington tries to lead the nation down the pied piper path toward government-run health care, it is incumbent on the people to examine the promises versus the reality.

Arlene Wohlgemuth is a Senior Fellow at the Texas Public Policy Foundation's Center for Health Care Policy. She served ten years as a state representative for district 58.

During the 77th legislative session, she served as chairman of Appropriations Article II Subcommittee (Health and Human Services), vice-chairman of Calendars, CBO for Human Services, and member of the Select Committee for Health Care Expenditures. Ms. Wohlgemuth authored HB 2292, the sweeping reform of Health and Human Services which improved service delivery for the recipients, saving taxpayers more than $3.7B during its first five years. The reforms consolidated 12 agencies into five. It was the largest government reform bill ever passed in the state.

Ms. Wohlgemuth served as president of the Texas Conservative Coalition, chairman of the TCCRI Health and Human Services Task Force, and chairman of the TCCRI State Finance Task Force. She was twice named to Texas Monthly's "Ten Best" List.

Beating The Dems at Their Own Game: Using Education and Social Media

Eric has dedicated his life to fighting ideological bigotry – what he defines as a pervasive disdain for conservatives merely because they exist. Eric presents his discussion, ranging from serious to senseless, of why questioning issues such as the legality of gay marriage does not make one a homophobe; wanting to privatize social security does not mean one wishes to see seniors bleeding to death on the streets; and examining whether affirmative action succeeds does not make one a racist. With engaging and often amusing insight, Eric illustrates how people can disagree without impugning their humanity. With his book "Ideological Bigotry" and his ongoing blog, Eric's ultimate goal is to make the world a better place. Within these pages, he illuminates that until liberals see conservatives as a noble opposition, they will continue to live in the intellectual, ethical, and political wilderness reserved for those who prefer rage, hatred and anger to rolling up their sleeves and creating solutions.
