A Message from: Borah Van Dormolen, Republican National Committeewoman, Texas

The Republican National Committee Winter Meeting in Hawaii was exciting and packed full of information, celebration of our recent Republican victories in NJ, VA and MA, and focused on the upcoming 2010 elections. I look forward to keeping our membership updated on the activities of the Republican National Committee via the TFRW newsletter.

Jan Larimer, Co-Chairman, Republican National Committee, and former member of the NFRW Executive Committee 2002- 2003 has some very exciting RNC Women Interactive Programs. These programs are designed to help you connect with the RNC and partner with other women throughout the nation.

* <http://www.gop.com/women> is the home page for the Co-Chairman's Office at the RNC. Here you will find information on the RNC Women's Program, upcoming events, talking points, helpful links and opportunities to get involved.

* RNCwomen.com is the action center that enables members to engage with one another by inviting friends to join, forming groups and engaging in discussions, viewing photos and videos, and sharing information about events and causes. It was created by the RNC Co-Chairman's Office in response to overwhelming demand from women across the country looking for a place where they can interact with one another as well as with the Co-Chairman's office at the RNC.

* On Facebook, under Causes or go to:

<http://apps.facebook.com/causes/324689/27147395?m=8267094b> "GOP Women Care from the RNC Co-Chairman" provides a forum for women to become active within the health care debate. The Cause Page informs users about Obama's health care bill & provides a place for women to engage in the health care debate.

* @RNCWomen Follow RNC Women on Twitter. Look for daily updates on important issues, the RNC Women's Program and Jan Larimer's travels throughout the country on behalf of the Republican National Committee.

These are excellent sites to keep us all informed and connect with women across this great country. Share these sites with your membership and encourage them to log on to receive regular updates on critical issues, meet new friends on Facebook and Twitter and garner talking points to encourage neighbors to become members of your local Clubs. Join the RNC online today! We make a difference!
